Kopac Consulting's New Publication Highlighting Managed Project Solutions[®] (MPS) Helps Provide Alternatives for Managing Crisis Projects in Finance and Operations

HOUSTON--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- With the rapid changes in technology, regulations, and the economic climate, companies will, during their life cycle face operational and accounting related crisis. Those companies that can adapt to sudden restructuring requests, ramp-up or down of operations, and unusual accounting reconciliations will be better prepared to manage change, sustain operating competitiveness, and reduce risk. Kopac Consulting, a leader in providing solutions to the energy industry, has just released Managed Project Solutions: Crisis management and Value Added Projects in Accounting & Finance.[®]

The MPS Framework created by Kopac Consulting, marries project management concepts with a responsive technical model blending operations, information technology and finance to deliver world-class results to an organization's initiatives. Typical projects supported by the model include restructuring, crisis accounting, system stabilization, company-wide physical inventory, and operational response teams.

“Organizations need a way to maintain a bird's eye view of company-wide projects that add value and adopt creative teaming models to quickly respond to crisis situations. The Kopac MPS solution addresses the management of crisis projects,” said John Kopalchick, Kopac's president and developer of the solution. “The essence of an MPS involves setting up a model to respond to value added or urgent projects in a responsive, creative, and confidential manner.”

The guide contains 36 pages of discussion, frameworks, and methods for adopting what could be an industry best practice. To receive a complimentary copy of Managed Project Solutions Crisis Management and Value Projects In Accounting & Finance please send your request to info@kopacconsulting.com.
